A moment at the 9/11 memorial

British Prime Minister David Cameron visited Manhattan yesterday, taking a tour of the 9/11 Memorial with his wife Samantha and Mayor Michael Bloomberg. The Camerons paid homage to the victims of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks. They were joined by Charles Wolf, a British citizen whose wife Katherine Wolf was killed the day of the attacks. METRO/AB

Quest to curb dangerous buses gets Senate boost

Sen. Chuck Schumer's bus bill passes Senate ◗ Proposes several new regulations for all bus companies ◗ Letter grades suggested for buses

Bus companies may have to learn their ABCs.

The U.S. Senate passed Sen. Charles Schumer's bus bill on Wednesday, which would require curbside buses to display safety letter grades, among other new provisions.

The legislation would affect all bus companies in the nation, like Greyhound, Megabus and Fung Wah.

Schumer proposed the legislation last year in response to a litany of fatal crashes involving discount buses, including a Bronx crash that killed 15.

"The Senate gets an 'A' for passing this crucial bill that will finally alert passengers about bus companies' safety records before they buy a ticket," Schumer said Thursday, adding that New York City's restaurant letter grading system inspired him to write the bill.

Some transportation experts applauded the legislation.

"Having more information empowers riders and customers to make the best decision for themselves," said Ya-Ting Liu, the public transit campaign manager at advocacy group Transportation Alternatives.

The Coalition of Port Authority Carriers, which includes bus carriers Adirondack Trailways and Peter Pan, also backs Schumer's bill.

Dale Moser, chief operating officer of CoachUSA, which owns Megabus, said he supports any efforts toward increasing safety but was concerned about how some aspects of the bill would be enforced, like random inspections on buses en route.

"To have buses stopped on an interstate seems like an inconvenience to customers and will certainly add time to a trip," Moser said. "It may cause customers to stop riding motorcoaches and get back into their cars."

A Schumer spokesman said this aspect of the bill was designed to target low-fare curbside carriers that do not have terminals in which to be inspected.

EMILY ANNE EPSTEIN
emily.epstein@metro.us

What's in the bill?

The bill was pushed through as part of the Surface Transportation Bill, an extensive transportation and infrastructure bill. Schumer originally proposed the legislation last year in response to numerous fatal crashes involving the discount tour bus industry.

The bill would require the Federal Motor Carriage Safety Administration to create clear and understandable safety ratings to be displayed at ticket windows, departure terminals and on each bus.

All buses would also have Electronic On-Board Recorders, which monitor drivers.

For the first time, the bill would allow federal regulators to stop buses for en route inspections, and it gives inspectors more authority to crack down on unsafe carriers. METRO/EAE

Safety in numbers

A study last year by the National Transportation Safety Board revealed these bus industry statistics:

- Curbside carriers with 10 or fewer buses and carriers who have been in business for 10 years or less have higher accident rates and higher roadside inspection violation rates.
- The fatal accident rate for curbside carriers from January 2005 to March 2011 was seven times that of conventional bus operations: 1.4 fatal accidents per 100 vehicles for curbside carriers compared with 0.2 fatal accidents per 100 vehicles for conventional scheduled carriers.

Kelly's 'failure to answer' questions draws Council ire

GETTY IMAGES

▶ Kelly proposed millions more, a lawmaker said.

Police Commissioner Ray Kelly said yesterday the NYPD's budget will increase by millions of dollars for the fiscal year of 2013 — but some lawmakers claim he wouldn't explain why.

Kelly presented a proposed budget for the counterterrorism and intelligence divisions of the police department at a City Council budget hearing.

The proposed increase would bring the counterterrorism division's budget from $29.5 million in fiscal year 2012 to $47.4 million for fiscal year 2013, according to numbers given by Park Slope Councilman Brad Lander.

Kelly also submitted a proposed increase for the intelligence division, which Lander said would be a $15 million increase from fiscal year 2009, bringing that budget to $60 million.

Lander lashed out over what he said was Kelly's lack of transparency and failure to explain the figures when asked.

"Commissioner Kelly asks us to trust him that NYPD officers are following the law, but he either could not or would not tell us what the NYPD is spending our money on," Lander said.

"This is at a time when resources for patrol officers, afterschool programs, and summer jobs have all been decreased dramatically," Lander added.

"We need to know what the increase is paying for."
BRAD LANDER

Queens Councilman Peter Vallone, chair of the Council's Public Safety committee, also said Kelly's testimony was not clear.

"Federal funding is complicated to explain, but the answer given by the NYPD was clearly not sufficient and we will seek clarity," Vallone said.

Lander also blasted Kelly's claim that the funding for NYPD operations in 11 cities overseas is covered with $1 million from the NYC Police Foundation.

"The staff, travel, lodging and expenses for this operation seem certainly higher than $1 million. Are these expenses being paid for with city funds?" Lander asked.

When asked whether city funds are indeed used for the NYPD's overseas operations, Deputy Commissioner Paul Browne responded, "The salaries of officers overseas are paid through the regular city/NYPD budget; their travel and other expenses overseas are paid by the NYC Police Foundation."

He did not comment on how the proposed additional millions would be spent for counterterrorism and intelligence.

Governor questions horse deaths

QUEENS. New York Gov. Andrew Cuomo made a formal inquiry Wednesday into the recent rash of fatal horse breakdowns at the Aqueduct that he called "disturbing." Since racing began on the inner-dirt track on Nov. 30, 16 horses have died, including one this week. On Wednesday, Hillsboro Bay was taken off the inner-dirt track following a race in an equine ambulance after injuring her right front leg and was later euthanized. Cuomo asked the New York Racing Association to hire an outside investigator to look into the incidents. The NYRA claims the inner-dirt track is safe but will switch racing to the main track on March 21, two weeks earlier than scheduled. The NYRA told Metro they will comply with Gov. Cuomo's request. METRO/EAE

Officers save baby

BROOKLYN. Cops rescued a baby that was given away soon after its birth. An NYPD spokesman said that around 6:30 p.m. Wednesday, a woman, 55, flagged down officers and told them that the baby was given to her by a 27-year-old who came to her door. The baby, which reportedly had its umbilical cord still attached, was in stable condition. Shoshannah Muhammad, the 27-year-old, was charged with reckless endangerment, the spokesman said. The baby had been born "within a couple hours," the spokesman said. METRO/EAE

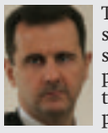
Bashar Al-Assad



The Syrian strongman seems to have a preference for the R&B side of pop, with Chris Brown and Leona Lewis among his recent purchases. Other choices are harder to understand, including "Don't Talk Just Kiss" from 1980s English band Right Said Fred, a "gay icon" group.

Kim Jong-il

The late autocrat of North Korea had a weakness for English singer-guitarist Eric Clapton. A 2007 WikiLeaks cable advised the U.S. government that arranging a concert would "be an opportunity to build goodwill." The new glorious leader Kim Jong-un prefers German electropop.

Osama Bin Laden

Outwardly a strict Muslim, his alleged ex-lover Kola Boof claims the Al Qaeda despot had a louder side: "He would become this devout party boy who wanted to hear Van Halen or some B-52s." According to Boof, Bin Laden also idolized Whitney Houston, demanding she replicate Houston's hairstyle.

Ramzan Kadyrov

The Chechen leader has been accused of torture and murder, but also throws lavish parties with A-list stars. For his birthday last October, Kadyrov flew in British singer Seal to perform his favorite song "Kiss from a Rose." Seal was criticized by human rights groups.

Slobodan Milosevic

While he was on trial for war crimes, the Serbian warlord passed the time with his favorite Frank Sinatra and Celine Dion CDs. It would have had "Old Blue Eyes" spinning in his grave to know that "My Way" was an inspiration to Milosevic, indicted for, among many other charges, genocide.

Muammar Gaddafi

Music lover Gaddafi hired Lionel Richie to play at his 2006 "Concert for Peace" in Libya, and was starstruck when he asked for the "Hello" singer's autograph. More recently he flew in Beyonce, and even turned his hand to composition, writing a song for Condoleezza Rice.

Robert Mugabe

Zimbabwe's leader was famously dismayed when Bob Marley was booked to perform at a 1979 independence celebration. He had requested "the perennially wholesome Cliff Richard." Mugabe has been accused of running a "reign of terror" whose "transgressions are unpardonable."

Saddam Hussein

Pop star Kasim al Sultan was known as the "Iraqi Ricky Martin," but when Saddam began inviting him to perform at private parties, al Sultan's lyrics became very on-message: "Saddam you are brave and the father of our nation." (Kasim was forced into exile in 2003.)

Obama hit by health insurance 'T-word'

GETTY IMAGES

▶ Read my lips.

To be, or not to be, a tax?

That is the question in this month's U.S. Supreme Court case testing the validity of President Barack Obama's controversial health care system overhaul.

At issue is the money that Americans will have to pay starting in 2014 to the Internal Revenue Service if they fail to obtain medical insurance.

During his 2008 campaign, Obama promised not to raise taxes on families earning less than $250,000. That's the same income bracket where a lot of people lack health insurance.

So, as president, Obama and his aides studiously avoided using the "T-word" as they worked to persuade Congress to pass the health care overhaul. Instead, they called it a "penalty."

Now enacted, the law refers to a "penalty" that must be paid if a taxpayer fails to get coverage.

Health and Human Services Secretary Kathleen Sebelius said at a recent congressional hearing that the payment "operates the same way a tax would operate, but it is not, per se, a tax."

Just last month, acting White House budget director Jeffrey Zients said in a hearing that it was not a tax. REUTERS

Ford sued over tanks

Ford Motor Co. has been sued for allegedly selling trucks over a 10-year period that had defective fuel tank linings and for hiding the problem from consumers even as it warned dealers.

The lawsuit filed Wednesday in a New Jersey federal court said fuel tank linings on 10 E- and F-series truck models made between 1999 and 2008 would "separate and flake off."

It said this would clog fuel systems with debris and rust, causing a sudden loss of engine power and potentially causing vehicles to buck or kick or suddenly stall.

Ford in 2007 issued a "secret" technical service bulletin to dealers advising of the problem, but neither recalled the affected trucks nor offered to repair them for free, the complaint said. REUTERS

Karzai to US: Get out of villages

KABUL. Afghanistan's President Hamid Karzai called for NATO troops to leave Afghan villages and confine themselves to major bases after the slaughter of 16 civilians by a U.S. soldier, underscoring fury over the massacre and clouding U.S. exit plans.

In a near simultaneous announcement, the Afghan Taliban said it was suspending nascent peace talks with the United States seen as a strong chance to end the country's decadelong conflict, blaming "shaky, erratic and vague" U.S. statements.

Karzai said as a consequence of the weekend massacre, "international security forces have to be taken out of Afghan village outposts and return to (larger) bases." REUTERS

BRAYDEN SIMMS

POLITICAL WORLDLINESS FOR AN IMPOLITE WORLD

@METROPOLITIK

Is the Republican party waging a "War on Women," and if so, are they winning it? The answers to these questions depend on whether you perceive the nasty legislative battle over the Obama administration's health care mandate as one over religious liberty or women's reproductive health.

Leading Republican presidential candidates Mitt Romney and Rick Santorum say the president is trampling religious freedom by forcing employers to comply with a national health care law requiring insurers to provide contraceptive services for women. A Bloomberg poll released Wednesday reports that 62 percent of respondents think otherwise. (The poll also indicated that Democrats aren't actually benefiting from the debate.)

So just what are Republican legislators doing? Following the failure to pass the controversial Blunt Amendment — which would have allowed employers to opt out of providing contraception coverage if it violated their beliefs, like, for instance, devout mysoginists — national lawmakers largely abandoned the issue, if not the rhetoric. But at least nine Republican-led states aren't ready to move on, proposing to expand contraception exemptions or moving symbolic condemnations of the law. In Arizona, lawmakers take their support of religious liberty a step further than others, working to legalize firing workers over birth control use.

What began with fallout over the Komen foundation's now-rescinded decision to unfund Planned Parenthood and led to the Virginia invasive ultrasound bill (imposing barriers on a woman's choice to abort) segued effortlessly into the character assassination of Sandra Fluke — which has now devolved into attacks over the student activist's "rich socialist boyfriend" and a vacation that apparently included some alcohol consumption.

Then on Thursday, the story grew to envelop a Senate fight over the Violence Against Women Act, which provides funding to investigate domestic violence, passed with bipartisan consensus in 1994. Conservative activist Phyllis Schlafly says the law led to "divorce, breakup of marriage and hatred of men." Republican Sen. Lisa Murkowski cautioned her party that it was "at risk of being successfully painted as anti-woman," The New York Times reported.

It's hard not to connect the dots. Republicans accuse Democrats of political point-scoring; Senate Minority Leader Mitch McConnell said Dems were "manufacturing fights" over the Women Act. (Murkowski disagreed. "This is too important an issue for women and men and families that we not address it," she said.)

McConnell's argument isn't, of course, unimaginable — U.S. politics seem to be a no-holds-barred arena. But why are Republican legislators playing into this narrative? Maybe it's because, despite outrage, they think they're the ones winning all the points. Ramesh Ponnuru of the National Review certainly thinks so: "The issue is likely to help Republicans in the fall, if they can keep their wits about them," he writes. For the current field of Republican presidential candidates, that's a very big "if."

SXSWONDERFUL

A couple veteran acts at the SXSW Music Conference stood out on Day 1 How you can join the Texas fest from home

▶ Fiona Apple can still captivate a crowd from behind a piano.

Jimmy Cliff

One of reggae's founding fathers seemed to be challenging himself to tone down his set on Wednesday night. Accompanied by only an acoustic guitarist and a drummer, the singer wore a simple red shirt and backwards baseball cap, and for much of the set, strummed a right-handed acoustic guitar that looked enormous on him in the left-handed position. Though the arrangement was basic, Cliff's performance was anything but. The 63-year-old Jamaican's high, elastic voice still sounds so sweet and strong. His set was filled with songs that spanned his career and almost served as a testament that his catalog should be required listening for any self-respecting songwriter. When he belted out "Many Rivers to Cross," it was a true moment of transcendence; when he updated his anti-war song, "Vietnam," by changing the chorus to "Afghanistan," it was a poignant reminder that although the place where we're fighting is different, the situation remains the same. The only complaint with this set was that he finished on a song called "One More," where he engaged the audience in a frenzied call-and-response that continued after he left the stage. With a title like "One More" and that kind of reaction from the crowd, one would think it was an obvious reason to come back for an encore. But no such luck.

Cotton Jones

Mostly centered around the warm voice of singer Michael Nau, Cotton Jones is a six-piece from Maryland. From the stage of a bar called Swan Dive, Nau announced at one point that the band had a few more songs left. But after turning in a performance of "Somehow to Keep It Going" from the band's 2010 album, "Tall Hours in the Glowstream," he must have realized that it wouldn't be possible to top it, so he said, "I guess that was our last song." Instead of feeling like a bow of defeat or an excuse of time constraints, it felt like an acknowledgment that magic had happened in the way the sing-along chorus of "Come on, baby let the river roll" resounded.

Fiona Apple

Kicking off NPR's showcase, Fiona Apple made it easy to forget this was the same musician who had an infamous onstage meltdown in 2005. Vacillating between a low croon and a hoarse primal scream, she spent most of the set hunched forward with her arms at her side, as if she were possessed by her songs. Her band expertly executed the loud-to-soft and soft-to-loud dynamic shifts that Apple's songs demand. There were even a few times when the band wandered into jam-band territory. But where that can sometimes feel frivolous, when anchored by a truly commanding singer like Apple, it works. She ended the set with a seething rendition of her 1996 breakout hit, "Criminal." If Apple truly did "need to be redeemed," she certainly was on this night.

The big-screen comic adaptation of '80s TV hit "21 Jump Street" is anything but consistent. Oddly enough, it still sort of works. Led by "Superbad" star Jonah Hill and Channing Tatum (also currently seen in "The Vow"), this adventure of two bumbling cops reliving high school as undercover narcs combines slapstick with shootouts and car chases in what amounts to one extravagant but groundless gag fest. While a handful of jokes and cameos refer to the old series, the film's laughs still play big, broad and immodestly bold.

In this subtitled telenovela spoof, Will Ferrell stars as Armando Alvarez — just go with it, OK? — a good-natured ranch hand on his father's property in Mexico. After his brother Raul (Luna) returns home with enough money to save the father's estate from financial ruin, plus a beautiful new fiancee (Rodriguez), Armando learns the truth behind his sibling's new fortune: He's in business with the country's dreaded drug lord, La Onza (Garcia Bernal). Armando must man up in order to protect who and what he values most in his life.

Ferrell gets kudos for his acting (extra for doing so in Spanish!), which is always good for laughs. The inclusion of Luna and Bernal — two of Mexico's biggest stars — is a treat, and newcomer Rodriguez is spot-on in this setting, considering her background is in Spanish-language soaps. Though this isn't on par with Ferrell classics like "Anchorman" and "Old School," it has its moments. And it earns its R rating: There's a ton of violence, plus some nudity — including a good look at Ferrell's tush.

Will Ferrell bares all

We're talking about his soul, yes — but also his butt
You can see for yourself in theaters this weekend

For the duration of his new movie, "Casa de Mi Padre," Will Ferrell speaks only in Spanish — the entire movie is subtitled. Fittingly clad in a powder blue country Western shirt ("It's got a little bit of a Dallas Cowboy cheerleader feel to it," he says), he spoke with us about his career, his kids and his famous rear end.

You have a nude scene in this film, and this is the second time that you're showing moviegoers your butt. What is it about your tush that you think audiences can't get enough of?
Honestly, I just was serving the script, No. 1. But No. 2, I think it's a funny-looking butt. It's a comedy butt. It was just a great opportunity to make fun of the stereotypical passion scene. Also, on a deeper level, we're so body-image conscious — why not show that we all have normal-looking bodies? It's kind of a way to just go, it's not that big a deal.

Your character, Armando, steps out of the shadows and finds his machismo in this film. Can you pinpoint a time in your life when you really came into your own?
That's a tough question only because I don't sit back and reflect in that way of like, "Yeah, I really came into my own." I don't know what that moment would have been. I think if you're doing comedy, I don't know if you ever really reach that feeling of like, "I've got it down." I think there's always a place of fear within you where you're like, "God, I hope this works." Getting on "Saturday Night Live" maybe was a little moment of that, but then you have to prove yourself on "Saturday Night Live." Then you leave the show and you test your waters in the movie world, and this business is getting harder and harder.

Will you let your kids see this movie?
You know, my 5-year-old could watch it because he doesn't read, but my 8-year-old, I don't know if he could see it because he'd be like, "Wait, I think I saw the F-word!" But it is kind of violent, [so] I don't know.

In this film, you speak Spanish, you ride a horse and you play the trumpet. What other special skills do you have that audiences don't know about?
That was not me [on the horse]. A couple times it was, where it slowly walked away, but any sort of big riding [wasn't]. But it looks good! That was me mimicking playing the trumpet. I can juggle knives, that's pretty cool, skeet shoot ... no, I don't know what other secret abilities I have.

Are you the kind of dad who monitors what his kids watch?
A little bit, but ... I just don't have the impulse to be like, "Do you wanna watch one of daddy's movies?" I waited for them to bring up "Elf." If they're like, "I heard about this one thing you did, can I see it?" I'm like, "Yeah, OK, we can watch it." But I never wanted to be like, "Look at me."

This movie is being described as "Anchorman"-meets-telenovela. How would Ron Burgundy fare in this world?
Probably horribly, because there's no way Burgundy knows any other languages. He'd pretend that he knows Spanish and just immediately get in some awkward, horrible, compromising position where he gets shot. Yeah, I don't think he'd do well.

Cocktails of the week

A toast to the Irish!

Bushmills Irish Whiskey Master Distiller Colum Egan shared this toast. Feel free to use it — often — this Saturday:

"May you be poor in misfortune, rich in blessings, quick to make friends, but slow to make enemies."

1 Irish Oatmeal
- 1 ¼ oz. Baileys Irish Cream
- 1 oz. DeKuyper Buttershots Liqueur
- ¾ oz. Goldschlager

Directions: Shake first three ingredients and serve over ice, paired with oatmeal cookies. Try it at R Lounge in the Renaissance New York Times Square Hotel.

2 The Pioneering Spirt
Drink this for St. Patrick's Day in honor of the 125th anniversary of Glenfiddich.

- 1 ½ parts Glenfiddich 12 Year Old
- 2 parts pear juice
- ½ part agave nectar
- 1 part lemon juice

Directions: Shake all ingredients on ice and strain into a chilled cocktail glass. Garnish with a lemon peel.

What to pair Guinness with? How about more Guinness

Your belly could use a little love to counteract all the pints you'll be downing on Saturday, and there's no better way to celebrate St. Patrick's Day than with some hearty Irish fare.

"Irish food is preferred simple and natural," says Justin O'Connor, executive chef at Dublin's own Guinness Storehouse. "Be it meat, fish or dairy products, we favor fresh food, locally sourced. More and more on menus today is a celebration of local artisan producers."

Irish cuisine makes use of the beer the country is known for — Guinness — in all sorts of ways. It's cooked in stews, kebabs and even chocolate desserts to give a lingering stout flavor.

"The high level of hops gives the Guinness some floral, grassy overtones which complement meat when cooking with it," O'Connor says. "Guinness is also excellent with seafood, particularly oysters — delicate, salty flavors enhance the strong, roasted, bitter flavor of Guinness.

And if you can't make it overseas this St. Patrick's Day, it seems the celebrations are pretty comparable to ours.

"All restaurants and homes celebrate with the classic Irish dishes of bacon and cabbage, corned beef and champ [mashed potatoes], Irish lamb stew and, of course, Guinness," the chef says.

Weekend recipe

Guinness Marinade Corned Beef, Champ Potato & Cabbage

Ingredients
- 3 lbs. of corned beef soaked in pint Guinness overnight
- 1 onion, chopped
- 5 cloves
- 3 bay leaves
- 9-10 black peppercorns
- 1 head of Savoy cabbage
- peeled potatoes, however many you see fit
- 5 oz. butter
- 1 ¾ cup cream
- 3 sliced spring onion

Directions
1. Cover the Guinness and beef with cold water in a pot.
2. Add onion, cloves, bay leaves and peppercorns. Cook for two hours or until tender.
3. Cook the potatoes in salted water, drain and mash. Add 3.5 oz. of butter, half the cream and spring onion. Season potatoes to taste.
4. Boil the sliced cabbage in salted water for five minutes and drain. Add a knob of butter and season. Take ½ cup of the cooking stock and place it in a pot. Add the rest of the cream and simmer for two minutes, whisking in 1.5 oz butter.

5. Carve the corned beef onto a plate with a scoop of champ potato and boiled cabbage. Finish with the cream sauce.

Going out

A mini-guide to St. Patrick's Day

Here are the basics: The New York City St. Patrick's Day Parade will take place this Saturday, beginning at 11 a.m., on Fifth Avenue around 44th Street. It will end around 2 p.m. or 3 p.m. at 79th Street. The drink and food specials at city bars and restaurants, however, will be a little more open-ended — geographically as well as gastronomically. Here are just a few deals that are going down:

▶ Southern Hospitality BBQ will feature a Southern twist on Irish food this Saturday.

▶ Corned beef and cole slaw at Southern Hospitality BBQ

Both locations of Southern Hospitality BBQ are hosting a St. Patrick's Day party on Saturday from noon to 6 p.m., offering festive Irish foods including smoked corned beef and cole slaw (available all day) and beverage specials such as $5 Jameson shots, $7 Irish Car Bombs and $4 Guinnesses.

645 Ninth Ave., 212-265-1000
1460 Second Ave., 212-294-1001

▶ Breakfast at Park Avenue Tavern

Located just two blocks from the parade, Park Avenue Tavern will open their doors on Saturday at 8 a.m., serving a traditional Irish breakfast, including bangers, rashers, black and white pudding, beans, scrambled eggs and potatoes along with a pint of Guinness or a bloody mary. All will be served until noon for $20.

99 Park Ave., 212-867-4484

▶ An authentic St. Patrick's Day

Celebrate St. Patrick's Day with a true Irishman, Shades of Green owner Pat Cormican, who hails from County Galway, Ireland. His Irish pub will feature specials such as shepherd's pie ($16), Irish beef stew ($17) and corned beef and cabbage ($17).

THE WORD

Metro's Dorothy Robinson shares her take on the world of gossip @dorothyatmetro dorothy.robinson@metro.us

Jermaine Jones: 'You're fired!'

Here's the thing: You can get away with a few little white lies on your résumé if you're applying to, say, a remote Applebee's in some God-forsaken strip mall off the interstate. But when you are auditioning for one of the most powerful brands in the entire universe, a brand that has billions of dollars at their disposal to make sure nothing happens to tarnish their reputation, you should probably be up front with anything that might bite you on the butt later.

It seems "American Idol" contestant Jermaine Jones didn't get this memo. The top 12 finalist was disqualified from the show after the powers-that-be learned he'd kept his criminal background under wraps, having four outstanding arrest warrants in his home state of New Jersey and a history of using multiple fake names with cops. And so executive producers Nigel Lythgoe and Ken Warwick fired him on national TV Wednesday night, Donald Trump-style.

However, the drama leading up to the evening (blogs have been buzzing with the Jones news since The Smoking Gun uncovered his unsavory past) did nothing to boost the show's ratings. In fact, viewership was down 5 percent from last week.

▶ Jermaine Jones, dubbed "The Gentle Giant" by host Ryan Seacrest, is maybe not so gentle.

"With the cooperation of law enforcement, we discovered information that left us with no choice but to eliminate one of our own from the competition. When you're doing a live show, anything can happen."
RYAN SEACREST, ON THE FIRING OF CONTESTANT JERMAINE JONES

Brand's warrant for his arrest

New Orleans police have issued a warrant for Russell Brand in connection with an incident during which Brand reportedly hurled a paparazzo's iPhone into an office window, according to TMZ. The warrant is for simple criminal damage to property, a misdemeanor. The website previously reported that immediately following the incident on Monday, reps for Brand contacted the law office involved and said Brand would pay for the damage to the window. And while Brand has made no official comment on the incident, he did make light of it on Twitter, posting, "Since Steve Jobs died I cannot bear to see anyone use an iphone irreverently, what I did was a tribute to his memory."

Talking points

Lohan: I'm innocent with the car thing!

Lindsay Lohan insists the latest claims that she struck a man with her Porsche and then fled the scene are completely false, according to Radar Online. "Lindsay is adamant that she absolutely didn't hit anyone while she was driving. Lindsay is extremely upset that there would be speculation she would ditch the scene of a potential crime scene," a source says. "She is days away from being taken off formal probation. Would it make sense for Lindsay to flee the scene with tons of paparazzi? No, she wouldn't have done that if there was a remote possibility she had hit someone."

It's the same old story for Aniston

Jennifer Aniston and Justin Theroux have reportedly been telling friends that they're ready to start a family, according to Life & Style Weekly. And if that isn't enough to stoke pregnancy rumors, Aniston was reportedly eschewing booze during some Academy Awards festivities. "I saw Jen Oscar week, and she couldn't stop smiling," a source says. "She was actually less lean and less muscular than I had expected her to be — her body looked softer. In the dress she wore, it really did look like she had a baby bump."

Mendes steps up her Gosling girlfriend game

Eva Mendes has reportedly been looking for a way to prove to Ryan Gosling that she's serious about their relationship — and she may have found it. Mendes is taking care of Gosling's dog, George, while the actor is filming in Thailand, according to Us Weekly. "He was going to have his friends watch George, but changed his mind at the last minute," a source informs. "That's a huge deal to him. He wouldn't leave that dog with just anyone."

Hamm: 'Mad' porn?

Jon Hamm more than paid his dues before finding success with "Mad Men," but exactly how bad did things get? "I did set dressing on some soft-core porn films," Hamm tells Playboy. "That was hands-down the worst. I was working on the crew from 7 to 7, and it was horribly depressing." Hamm, who had many day jobs before his acting career took off, freely admits that the adult film work was by far the worst. "It's definitely on the lower end of the spectrum of the wonder of moviemaking. It wasn't even that much money," he says.

Top that! Celebrities in top hats

1. The original gangster: Fred Astaire (1899 - 1987) wore a classic stovepipe hat while performing the "Ritz Roll And Rock" number from the 1957 film "Silk Stockings."

2. Dita Von Teese wore her cap tilted while at Patrick Demarchelier's exhibition party in 2008 in Paris, France.

3. Always one to change it up: Madonna wore a white top hat while performing at Wembley Stadium during her "Sticky and Sweet" Tour in London in 2008.

4. Yoko Ono arrived at the UK Premiere of "George Harrison: Living In The Material World" sporting a top hat at BFI Southbank in London last year.

5. Beyonce Knowles performed on stage during the 2009 Academy Awards in Los Angeles while wearing one.

6. Nicole Scherzinger sported a tiny top hat at "The Rocky Horror Picture Show" 35th Anniversary tribute held at The Wiltern on in Los Angeles in 2010.

7. Miranda Kerr wore by far the hottest top hat during the Sexy Circus Halloween Party at Catch Rooftop in New York City last year.

8. The eternally chic Daphne Guiness wore a giant version to the premiere of "Marina Abramovic The Artist Is Present" at Soho Beach House in Miami Beach, Fla., last year.

3 Most incredible nature scenes filmed for 'Frozen Planet'

Elizabeth White, one of the directors behind the new Discovery Channel series documenting life at Earth's polar regions, shares her 'holy grail' moments caught while the cameras were rolling

DISCOVERY CHANNEL/BBC/© CHADDEN HUNTER

▶ Camera crews went to great lengths to capture never-before-seen footage of the landscape and wildlife in Antarctica for "Frozen Planet," narrated by Alec Baldwin. The series premieres Sunday at 8 p.m. on Discovery Channel.

1 First complete filming of a killer whale "wave wash," in which hunting orcas create giant waves to wash seals off ice floes

"We had tantalizing reports of this behavior from observers on cruise ships, the diaries of the early explorers and also a shaky tourist video," says White, whose crew went to the Antarctic to capture its own footage of this phenomenon, said to be the most complex team hunt in the whole of the animal kingdom. "Among large ice floes peppered with sunbathing seals, the crew saw some tall dorsal fins and killer whales coming vertically out of the water to have a look around. Remarkably, right in front their eyes, a pod of killer whales prospected an ice floe, turned and generated a wave which washed over a nearby floe. What they revealed to the scientists was a number of things — that killer whales have a real preference for Weddell seals, not crabeaters (as had previously been proposed), that they use different techniques to break up floes of different sizes and that different pods behave differently — some are bold and fearless and others more cautious."

2 Footage of the brinicle, an underwater ice stalactite that plunges toward the seabed and kills everything it touches

"This was an unexpected discovery for the 'Frozen Planet' team," admits White. "Relatively few people have dived in Antarctica, and there is still much to learn about the marine life there. [The crew was] aware of these bizarre ice chandeliers — brine icicles — hanging from the sea ice above, but it was only when filming something else that they accidently witnessed one forming. This was an amazing opportunity to use time-lapse techniques to really show what happens when these bizarre formations grow. This phenomenon had never been filmed before."

3 Aerial footage of Antarctica — including the first aerials of the South Pole base — retracing the steps of early explorers Robert F. Scott and Roald Amundsen

"We were aware that 'Frozen Planet' would be airing exactly 100 years after the tragic story of Scott and his team, as they battled to be the first men to stand at the geographical South Pole. Retracing their epic journey — across the trans-Antarctic mountains, mighty Beardmore Glacier and up onto the vast polar plateau — felt a very symbolic journey to make, even if done using helicopters and planes, rather than by foot."

Newsflash: Obama is also half white!

RE: "OBAMA'S ALBATROSS: RACE TO THE BOTTOM?": Tondalaya, are you aware that the president is only 50 percent black? How does the hatred of Obama go back to color? It was uneducated voters like yourself, who based there vote on color, that provided us this idiot. The race card should now be pointed at you. MARK CARRIERI, VIA E-MAIL

I think it's simultaneously humorous and sad that so many Obama supporters think his detractors dislike him because he's (half) black. Between the handling of the oil spill in the Gulf, the poor use of stimulus money, our military operations in Libya and the rising estimates of what his national health care plan will cost, there are plenty of reasons to be unhappy with his administration.
MICHAEL B. JUSTICE, NEW YORK

Some people think Obama should be given a second chance because he inherited a bad economy from Bush. As I recall, Obama promised to fix America; but instead, after almost four full years in office, has made things worse. I'm not rich and can't afford another four years of Obama's wealth redistribution, can you?
DALTON DAVIS, UPPER EAST SIDE

The astute letter-writers in Thursday's letters section hit the nail right on the head. Nobody is looking at the economy or Iran or a health care takeover that was ramrodded sideways and backwards through Congress. No one is looking at opposition to drilling, full backing of algae based fuel and solar power companies that go bankrupt after having taxpayer handouts. We're all just looking at the color of the man whose face is put on the U.S. flag in place of the field of stars, flown proudly over Democratic headquarters in Florida. Why don't we just forget the nomination process and just print out ballots that say "White Guy" and "Black Guy," since that's how most of the left plan to vote anyway?
FRANK DIXON, VIA E-MAIL

Health care can't supercede beliefs

RE: "RESPECT IS EARNED, NOT TAKEN BY FORCE": The Founding Fathers knew there was a need for separation of Church and State. That's why our Constitution protects the rights of any group to worship as they please without government interference. The government cannot, for example, pass a law ordering a Jewish orthodox hospital to serve pork chops in its cafeteria because some of the patients think they have a right to eat pork. That's why the new "health care" law is being challenged. Incidentally, contraception is not a health issue. Some individuals try to link it to Viagra or hormone-replacement therapy to justify their position, but these medicines restore what once occurred naturally. Contraception is used to prevent unwanted, but normal, functioning.
ADELAIDE VERPONI, BROOKLYN

It's interesting that many letters bash the Bible but never discuss the Koran. People do not stone people as suggested in the Bible but they do stone, behead and engage in honor killings as prescribed in the Koran. Why doesn't anyone have the courage to talk about that?

Horoscope

♓ Pisces Feb. 20-March 20. If you have some time to devote to a pleasurable pursuit, get out and go someplace where you can meet and mingle with new people. The change will do you good.
♈ Aries March 21-April 19. Get out and mingle while your popularity is at a high point. Even those who might have been a bit standoffish in the past will now orbit around you.
♉ Taurus April 20-May 20. The best way to be successful is to make sure that your thinking is totally flexible, so that you'll be able to see things in a completely new light. Having an open mind is the key.
♊ Gemini May 21-June 20. Go with the flow, even if what occurs is far afield from what you were hoping to do. New doors could be opened to you.
♋ Cancer June 21-July 22. A cooperative spirit will be a major asset in all your relationships and should make you a very popular person to be around. Others will do for you what you do for them.
♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 22. Because life has been a trifle demanding of you lately, try to take a few moments to engage in something that you really enjoy doing. The most gratifying thing you can do is to be constructive.
♍ Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22. Social contacts can be enormously useful at this time, helping you further a special interest. Be sure to make your needs known to your friends as well as your family.
♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23. In order to finalize a matter, you must keep uppermost in your mind what you hope to accomplish. Lock in on a target, and you'll find the results to be extremely gratifying.
♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22. You should take care of some old business by getting your message out on the Internet or by telephone. Regardless of the method you use, something fortuitous is likely.
♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21. You might find that special something you've wanted to purchase but always felt was too expensive at a price you're willing to pay. Grab it: You might not get a chance like this again.
♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19. Try to avoid people who have a tendency to tie up your time. Your personal freedom and mobility will be of particular importance at this point.
♒ Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 19. Feelings of fulfillment and worth will only come from things you do for others, not from what you do for yourself. Now is the time to make good on your promises.

Pen-ultimate team

Rangers still first in standings, but looked like second best in 5-2 loss to Pittsburgh ◗ Lundqvist misses second game ◗ Crosby quiet in return

NICK LAHAM/GETTY IMAGES

▶ The Rangers' defense scrambles to keep a shot from Matt Cooke, far left, from going in. It crossed the line for the Pens' first goal.

The Rangers' plan was to not allow Sidney Crosby to beat them. He did not. But his teammates did.

The Rangers have lost the last three games they have played against their divisional rival following last night's 5-2 loss to the Penguins. It was also the first time the Rangers have allowed five goals in a regulation contest this season.

Matt Cooke scored two goals for the Penguins, while Evgeni Malkin, Chris Kunitz and Pascal Dupuis added one each. Goaltender Marc-Andre Fleury made 29 saves.

Carl Hagelin and Marian Gaborik scored both Rangers' goals. The line of Hagelin, Gaborik and Brad Richards has scored 10 of the Rangers' last 11 goals.

Martin Biron, making his second straight start as Henrik Lundqvist continues to suffer from the flu, was under siege for most of the night. He finished with 27 saves on 32 shots.

Crosby's second return was not a storybook tale, but he was plus three on the night.

Sid the Kid returns to ice at MSG

The challenge for the NHL's pre-eminent player as he made his return to the game was normalcy.

Considering the venue, opponent and overflow media contingent chronicling his every move, there was nothing typical about Sidney Crosby's return.

"I think if anything you're excited to get back out there and try to use that adrenaline to play well. But this is a big game, and I think if anything try to make it as normal as possible," Crosby said Thursday morning.

Thursday's marquee match was Crosby's second comeback from post-concussion symptoms. He played 15 minutes, had one shot on goal and one assist. METRO/DG

In the news

Super rich Mario

The Buffalo Bills signed the prize defensive free agent of this year's class Thursday.

Former Texans defensive end Mario Williams signed a six-year, $100 million contract with $50 million guaranteed.

The former No. 1 overall pick has 53 sacks in his career and should help a Bills' defense that was 29th in the NFL in sacks and 30th in scoring defense last year.

40

Sidney Crosby missed the last 40 games this season recovering from post-concussion symptoms. He last played for the Penguins on Dec. 5.

91

Pittsburgh remains in second in the Eastern Conference, but moves to within four points of the Rangers with 91. The Rangers remain at 95 on the season.

▶ Carmelo Anthony already seems a much happier player under interim coach Mike Woodson.

Woodson kicks team into gear

◐ First practice under interim coach stresses defense ◐ Offense focused on stars ◐ Melo: 'Back to having fun'

Mike Woodson's first official practice as the head coach already showed that times are changing, as the Knicks went through a strenuous, two-hour session.

Woodson's session featured much more structure on the offensive end, with little freelancing, and more traditional sets that ran through their two stars, Amar'e Stoudemire and Carmelo Anthony.

Woodson added that as long as guys seem engaged on the defensive end, he'll allow for some creativity. Defense comes "first and foremost" though.

"As long as they're into it [on the defensive end], we can tweak things offensively," said Woodson. "I think they responded well to our defensive session today. But we have a long way to go. … Like I said [Wednesday night], I hold everyone accountable."

If body language is any indicator, Anthony seems like he's as happy as he's ever been since coming from Denver last February.

"We were back to playing basketball, back to having fun," Anthony said, still sounding like offense will always be first and foremost on his brain. "It gets frustrating when you're not making shots, though. We could play all the defense in the world and we could stop teams, but [the game] still means putting the ball in the hole."

Trade deadline

The deadline was quiet, but a few moves were made.

- The Lakers added PG Ramon Sessions from Cleveland for a draft pick.
- The rival Clippers picked up Nick Young, while the Spurs added Stephen Jackson.

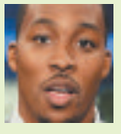
Howard won't opt out '12-'13



The Dwight Howard saga has ended. For one year anyway.

Howard signed the opt out termination clause in his contract Thursday afternoon meaning he will be with the Magic through this season and won't be able to opt out and become a free agent this offseason.

That doesn't preclude fans from suffering through another "will he or won't he" situation at next year's trade deadline.

"I'm glad this is finally over," Howard said. "It's not as easy as some people think. It's been very hard. We're talking a career-changing event. Most people don't see that."

While it's good news for Magic fans, it could be disastrous for the Nets, who were banking on either a trade for Howard on Thursday or signing him this offseason. All-Star Deron Williams appears unlikely to stay with the team without a star teammate. The Nets did trade a first-round pick for Gerald Wallace. ● METRO
